CLASS COMMITTEE.

THOMAS FRANKLIN BROWNELL, Class Secretary,
CHARLES HARRISON TWEED,
GEORGE AUGUSTUS GODDARD.

The address of the Class Secretary is 120 Broadway, New York City.

TO THE CLASS OF 1865.

CLASSMATES :

I TAKE pleasure in submitting to you my Eighth Report, as your Class Secretary. The accounts of your lives for the past five years, which you will find set forth in the following pages, have been prepared almost exclusively from the reports which you have sent to me in reply to my circular of last April. From twenty, no answer has been received. Of these, however, four have not been heard from for thirty years, and two others for over twenty years. Concerning these twenty, I have been able to give such information only as common report has brought to me.

You will probably find that I have less of incident to report this time than has appeared in former Reports. During the past five years, no one of you has joined any kind of "Red Men," or been captured by African savages, or given "spook" materializations to astonished Classmates in various parts of the country, and no one has even cut himself "with an axe." It must be confessed that although one of you is still engaged in writing a poem, your general conduct for the past five years has been less spectacular than is required to make a Class Report of absorbing interest. It may be that the twenty who have not replied have had all the experiences, and will relate some day stories full of incidents for future Reports. It would, indeed, be a disappointment to us all, if, when they appear after ten or twenty years' absence, they should report, in the language of too many of you, "No change."

I have deemed it of interest to refer in the Report to the children of the Class, both girls and boys, who are preparing for, or are now in, college, or who have been graduated. The number is small, and you cannot but notice in passing that the entire number of your children, 200, falls somewhat short of the accomplishment of the proud purpose to have 1400, which was evinced in the early stages of your post-graduate deportment.

I have attempted to bring down to date the summary of degrees and other honors received by the members of the Class, which is given in the list printed at the beginning of the Report.

Two new names will be found in the list of graduated members—that of George B. Russell, who received his degree in 1891, as of our Class, and that of John W. Carter, who received his degree in 1892 as of our Class. The recent sad death of the latter, following so closely upon our Class dinner, at which he was present, was a shock to us all. The account of his life must be delayed till the next Report. Two others of our number have died during the past five years, Howard and Doe. A notice of the life of the latter, prepared by a classmate, will be found in this Report.

There are, I am sure, many omissions and errors in the accounts of you which I have prepared, and especially in the summaries and statistics at the end of the Report. I shall be under obligations to you, if, immediately upon perceiving these, you will inform me, that corrections may be made. Please also notify me promptly of any changes in your post-office addresses.

I remain, very sincerely yours,

T. FRANK. BROWNELL,

Class Secretary.

New York City, 120 Broadway,

BIOGRAPHICAL RECORDS

OF THE

CLASS OF 1865.

GRADUATED MEMBERS.

FRANCIS JOHN ALISON. "I am still engaged in the practice of law."

Address : 216 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa.

*FRANK EUSTACE ANDERSON. He died at Leipsic, Germany, 15 July, 1880. See Secretary's Report, No. 6.

LUDLOW APJONES. When last heard from, in 1890, he was at Fort Smith, Arkansas. The Class circular addressed to him there was forwarded to Homestead, Pa., and then returned marked "not found."

ROBERT HALE BANCROFT. For the past five years he has continued to reside in Boston. He has not been engaged in any business. He sailed for Europe, 2 January, 1892, and returned, 30 June, 1892. He retains his membership in the Union and St. Botolph clubs in Boston.

He was appointed by the Board of Overseers of Harvard College a member of its committee on French for 1891–92.

He was married, 29 December, 1891, in Philadelphia, to Elise Tiffany Milligan, daughter of the late George Baldwin and Sophia Gough (Carroll) Milligan, of Philadelphia. A daughter, Eleanor Carroll, was born, 5 February, 1893, and another daughter, Elizabeth Hope, 30 January, 1895.

Address : 247 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

* GEORGE BLIGHT. He died in London, 16 March, 1877. See Secretary's Report, No. 5.

WILLIAM ELBRIDGE BOARDMAN. He has continued the practice of medicine in Boston. In 1889, when he removed his residence to Brookline, Mass., he resigned his hospital appointments in Boston, retaining his office there for general practice. He has lately changed his residence to Boston again.

He is a member of the University Club of Boston.

Address: 388 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS BRACKETT. Since his retirement from the office of Governor of Massachusetts in January, 1891, he has been engaged in the practice of law in Boston, as a member of the firm of Brackett and Roberts.

In June, 1892, he was delegate at large from Massachusetts to the Republican national convention, at Minneapolis, to which he was elected by the Republican state convention in May, 1892. In the national convention he served upon the committee on resolutions and upon the sub-committee on the currency question.

He is a member of the University Club of Boston and the Boston Art Club. He is a life member of the Boston Young Men's Christian Union, and of the Boston Mercantile Library Association. He is president of the Arlington Improvement Association, and for the past two years has been president of the Middlesex Club, a Republican political organization of Massachusetts. He was elected, 13 December, 1894, vice-president of the Boston Civil Service Reform Association.

His residence is in Arlington, Mass.

Address: 48 Congress street, Boston, Mass.

JOHN HENRY BRADFORD. Not heard from.

He has not been engaged in business and continues his residence in West Roxbury, Mass.

Address: Somerset Club, Boston, Mass.

THOMAS FRANKLIN BROWNELL. He is still engaged in the practice of law in New York city.

Since the organization of Good Government Club E., of New York city, he has been one of its trustees and is now also its second vice-president. In 1894, he was one of the incorporators of the Barnard Club, and has since then been one of its board of managers. In 1894, he joined the New York Biographical and Genealogical Society. In 1895, he retired from the committee on admissions of the University Club of New York, in which he had served as secretary for sixteen years. For the past eight years, he has been engaged in making, on behalf of the Harvard members of the University Club, a collection of Harvard Memorabilia for the Club library. This collection now comprises 394 bound volumes containing about 6700 separate publications.

In 1895, he placed in the University Club library his "Index to some of the periodical literature in the library of the University Club of New York city relating to Harvard University" (pp. 402, typewritten).

He was one of the marshals on Commencement day, 1890.

Address: 120 Broadway, New York city, N. Y.

ALBERT CLARK BUZELL. He has remained in Exeter, N. H. He is not at present engaged in any business.

Address: Exeter, N. H.

* JOHN WILKINS CARTER. In reply to the circular of the Secretary, he wrote, among other things, as follows:

"Since the last Report I have become a director in the American Social Science Association, a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and a member of the University Club of Boston. I have resigned from the Boston Athletic Association and am now president of the Massachusetts Reform Club, instead of secretary and treasurer.

"I put a girdle 'round the earth in 1891, and visited Europe in 1892, and Europe and Africa in 1894 and 1895.

"I received the degree of A.B. from Harvard in 1893."

His son, Burrage Carter, is a student in Harvard College in the Class of 1898.

Carter was present at our Class dinner in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of our graduation, on 25 June, 1895. Ten days later, on 5 July, he was drowned while bathing at Harwich, Mass. A notice of his life will appear in the next Report.

JAMES READ CHADWICK. He has been engaged in the practice of medicine in Boston since the last Report, passing his summers upon a farm which he has recently acquired at Chocorua, Carroll county, New Hampshire.

In 1891, he was chairman of a committee which raised eighty thousand dollars to purchase the Morse collection of Japanese pottery for the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

On November 15, 1890, he issued the original call for a meeting to take steps for the organization of the Alumni of the Harvard Medical School. He was subsequently elected the first president of the Harvard Medical Alumni Association, and served in that capacity from 1891 to 1894 inclusive.

In 1892, he became interested in cremation; with several others he revived the moribund Massachusetts Cremation Society, was elected one of its directors, and subsequently the president of the society. Twenty-eight thousand dollars were raised, the first crematory in New England built at Forest Hills, which has, since December 30, 1893, been in successful operation.

In 1892, he was elected one of the council of the Harvard Graduates Magazine Association and a member of its executive committee.

In 1893, he was elected vice-president of the association.

In December, 1894, he was elected president of the Obstetrical Society of Boston.

He has published but little:

Four addresses as president in 1891–1894, in the Bulletins of the Harvard Medical Alumni Association.

An address before the New England Cremation Society, December 19, 1893, published in the Transactions, No. 2, 1893.

He was one of the marshals on Commencement day, 1890.

Address: 270 Clarendon street, Boston, Mass.

ALBRO ELMORE CHASE. He has remained in Portland, Me., engaged in teaching as principal of the high school, and in practising law. He is still actively interested in Masonry and has delivered several addresses upon the subject. He is also associate editor of The Masonic Journal, a paper published in Portland.

His son, Edward Nichols Chase, is a member of the Class of 1896 at Harvard College.

Address: Portland, Me.

JOHN WESLEY CHURCHILL. He is still at Andover, Mass., the Professor of Pulpit Delivery on the Franklin Jones Foundation, in the Andover Theological Seminary. In June, 1893, the trustees of the institution appointed him also lecturer on literature. He is a trustee of Abbot Academy, Andover, and of the School of Expression, Boston.

In 1890, he was appointed instructor in Pulpit Delivery in the Divinity School in Harvard University, and has occupied that position to the present time. He gives the Mondays of the academic year to this duty.

In 1893, he was appointed a member of the board of preachers for the Dartmouth College Church, Hanover, N. H. He is still a member of that board. For two years he has given limited instruction in his department in Dartmouth College, and at the Commencement in June, 1894, he was elected an honorary member of the Dartmouth College Alumni Association. He is a member of the Winthrop Club, Boston.

He continued his co-editorship of The Andover Review until the suspension of its publication, in December, 1893. His contributions to that Review, since the last Report, were :

Canon Liddon's Preaching, 1890.
James Russell Lowell, 1891.
Phillips Brooks, 1893.
"The Newer Religious Thinking," by Rev. David Nelson Beach, 1893.

In addition to sermons prepared for the Chapel Church, Andover, of which he is ex officio one of the pastors, he has preached several ordination sermons, and the sermon at the dedication of churches in Swampscott, Mass., Cliftondale, Mass., and Nashua, N. H. The sermon at the dedication of the church in Nashua was published in pamphlet form, and also in The Nashua Telegraph.

He wrote the "Introduction" to The World's Best Hymns, compiled by L. K. Harlow (Little, Brown and Company, Boston).

He contributed the article on "Elocution" in Johnson's Cyclopædia (D. Appleton and Company, N. Y.).

His elder son, Donald Churchill, was graduated from Harvard College in the Class of 1893, and is now pursuing his studies in the Harvard Medical School. The younger son, Marlborough Churchill. is a student in Phillips Academy, Andover, and expects to enter Harvard College in 1896.

His lyceum engagements have continued, as usual, during the past five years ; but he contemplates abandoning this form of public effort.

Address : Lock Box 625, Andover, Mass.

CHARLES WARREN CLIFFORD. He has continued to reside in New Bedford, Mass., engaged in the practice of law, as a member in the firm of Crapo, Clifford and Clifford.

He was appointed in November, 1892, by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts one of the commissioners to determine the value of the Quincy Water Works. In June, 1894, he was appointed by the same court, one of the commissioners to apportion the cost of the Metropolitan Park System.

In June, 1891, he was elected president of the Masonic Building Association of New Bedford, and 28 January, 1895, president of the National Bank of Commerce of New Bedford. He was elected vice-president of the Massachusetts Republican Club in 1894 and 1895, and vice-president of the New Bedford Bar Association, 8 April, 1895. In December, 1894, he was elected president of the New Bedford Harvard Club. He became, 21 April, 1893, member of the executive board of the Unity Club of New Bedford. He joined the Colonial Society of Massachusetts, 15 February, 1893.

He has delivered the following addresses :

13 February, 1891. On the McKinley Tariff Act, before the Unity Club at New Bedford.

22 January, 1892. On Reciprocity, before the Unity Club at New Bedford.

3 February, 1893. On Corporations, before the Unity Club at New Bedford.

October, 1894. On Municipal Ownership of Underground Conduits, before a committee of the Board of Trade of New Bedford.

27 November, 1894. On Civil Service Reform, before the Unity Club at New Bedford.

November, 1894. Address at dinner of the Colonial Society of Massachusetts.

January, 1895. Address as president at the Annual Dinner of the New Bedford Harvard Club.

In addition to the societies mentioned in the last Report, he is member of the University Club of Boston and the Colonial Society of Massachusetts.

Address : Care of Crapo, Clifford and Clifford, New Bedford, Mass.

JOSEPH COOK. During the past five years he has continued his Monday lectures in Boston, and, when not engaged with these, has made tours as a lecturer or been occupied with work as editor and author. Each year he has made long lecturing tours, speaking five or six evenings each week, usually on topics of reform. The subject of the Monday lectures delivered in Boston, in 1894, was "Cosmopolitan Christianity, or The Invincible Gospel in the World's First Parliament of Religions," in which he took an active part in 1893. The subject of the Monday lectures in 1895 was "The Holy Spirit in Scripture, Science, and Life," with Preludes on current Reform. The executive committee of the Boston Monday Lectureship made the following report, 4 March, 1895 :

The Committee in charge of the Boston Monday Lectures desire to place on record their gratitude to Providence in view of the fact that the Lectureship has had great audiences and excellent results for twenty years. Mr. Cook has given in Boston 246 lectures on vital and commanding theological and philosophical topics, besides as many more preliminary addresses, or Preludes, on the most urgent issues of current Reform. The lectures have been given at noon on Mondays, in the busiest hour of the busiest day of the week. They have been attended by great numbers of preachers, teachers, students, and other educated men. Many distinguished guests have been introduced on the platform of the Lectureship. Eleven volumes of Mr. Cook's lectures have been published in book form in Boston and extensively re-published in London, and have had a remarkably large circulation not only in America, but in England, Scotland, India, and Australia. Different volumes of the series have reached an eighth, ninth, thirteenth, and one a twenty-first American edition. Several new volumes are now in preparation to be made up from Monday Lectures hitherto issued only in periodicals. The Lectureship has been heard in behalf of every urgent reform, as well as in support of all the leading evangelical truths. A success of this kind, running through a fifth of a century, is without American or European precedent. It would have been deemed to be probably impossible in advance of achievement. The Boston Hymns, begun in 1888, have enriched every service of the Lectureship for seven years.

He remained editor and sole owner of Our Day—a Record and Review of Current Reform, from 1888 to 1895. In March, 1895, in view of his second tour of the world as a lecturer, he sold his rights and interests in Our Day to one of the associate editors, and now edits only the Boston Monday Lectures as published in full in that periodical. His numerous publications for the last five years have been chiefly in this magazine, and in part in The Independent, of New York city.

3 June, 1894, he delivered an oration at the celebration of the ninetieth anniversary of Neal Dow's birthday, at the International Temperance Convention at Prohibition Park, Staten Island.

In 1894, he received the degree of LL.D. from Howard University, Washington, D. C.

15 June, 1895, he sailed from San Francisco for Australia on his second tour of the world as a lecturer.

When not absent on lecture tours, he continues to spend his summers at " Cliff Seat," Ticonderoga, on Lake George, N. Y.

Address : 17 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

HORATIO GREENOUGH CURTIS. He was elected, 1 February, 1891, president of the Old Boston National Bank of Boston, Mass., and since then has been engaged in the performance of the duties of that position. He resides in Boston in winter and in Nahant, Mass., in summer.

He was appointed by the Board of Overseers of Harvard College a member of the Committee on French for the years 1891–92, 1892–93, 1893–94, and 1894–95.

He has written much for the daily newspapers, chiefly on the subject of currency and finance.

In addition to the clubs mentioned in the last Report, he is a member of the Nahant Club, and treasurer of the Massachusetts Anti-Double-Taxation League.

He sailed for Europe, 15 August, 1890, and returned the same year, sailing for home, 15 November, 1890. He visited Europe again in 1893, sailing, 15 April, and returning by steamer sailing 10 June.

On Commencement day, 1890, he was chief marshal.

Address: 179 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass.

WALTER DABNEY. He has continued in the cotton brokerage business in Boston, as a member of the firm of Nourse, Dabney and Company. He has resigned from the Boston Athletic Association. He has joined the Exchange Club.

Address : 89 State street, Boston, Mass.

GEORGE WALES DILLAWAY. He remained in New York city engaged in the practice of law, as member of the firm of Dillaway, Davenport and Leeds, till August, 1893, when he was suddenly attacked by mental disease and placed in the McLean Hospital at Summerville, Mass., where he now is.

LEWIS ALLEN DODGE. Not heard from. At the date of the last Report, he held the office of assistant appraiser in the Boston Custom House and resided in Hamilton, Mass. I am informed that he has lost that position and that his present address is Exchange Building, 53 State street, Boston, Mass.

*ORLANDO WITHERSPOON DOE. Dr. Doe, the son of Thomas Jefferson and Lydia (Cilley) Doe, was born in South Newbury, Vt., Sept. 29, 1843. At the age of nine he went to Boston to live with an older brother, Mr. Freeman J. Doe, but afterwards returned for a time to Vermont. When he was thirteen years old, making up his mind that he wanted a liberal education, he became a permanent inmate of his brother's home, and attended the Boston Latin School, where he was prepared for college. During his college course he was a faithful student, and by his character won general respect ; but his quiet tastes and retiring disposition prevented him being well known, except to a few of his classmates. By these, however, he was highly valued, and the regret felt by the present writer, that an intimacy upon which he now looks back as one of the pleasantest features of his college life was necessarily interrupted by the wide separation and absorbing pursuits of later years, must be shared by all who enjoyed the same privilege.

Our classmate's choice of a profession proved a most fortunate one. From the moment of entering the Medical School he manifested an enthusiasm which was a distinct prophecy of his ultimate rare success, and exhibited powers which less congenial tasks had failed to call out. After taking the degree of Doctor of Medicine, he studied for a short time in Vienna, and then established himself as a physician in Boston, where entirely through his own merits and the remarkable confidence and regard which he inspired in his patients, he acquired a large practice in a surprisingly short space of time. During his whole professional life he was closely identified with the Boston City Hospital, having been house physician in 1868–9, physician to out-patients from 1870 to 1875, and visiting physician from 1875 till the time of his death. For several years he was connected with the Boston Dispensary and St. Luke's Home, and he was also instructor in gynæcology to the Harvard Medical School, a councillor of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and an active member of the Boston Society for Medical Improvement and the Obstetrical Society of Boston.

In 1875-6 he spent a year in study in Vienna, and it was his custom during later years to take an annual trip to Europe. In the summer of 1890 he went, before crossing the Atlantic, to Mexico, where it is thought that his usually robust health may have been affected by the climate in such a way as to render him more susceptible to the attack of double pneumonia to which he finally succumbed, although his illness was immediately traceable to exposure while answering a professional call at night. His death occurred on the 10th of December, 1890. The funeral services, on the 13th, were held at the house which had long been his home on Commonwealth avenue, and were conducted by Phillips Brooks, for whom he had a great admiration. By his will he left "To Harvard University five thousand dollars—the interest of one half to be given as a scholarship annually to a deserving student in the Academical Department, the interest of the other half to be given annually as a scholarship to a deserving student in the Medical Department." This bequest shows the love which Dr. Doe continued to cherish toward his Alma Mater, and it is also one of many evidences of the warm interest which he always took in helping young men. After his death the family received many letters and expressions of gratitude from those to whom, in one way or another, he had given important aid.

An indication of the regard felt for our classmate by his professional brethren will be found in the following extract from an editorial article in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, of December 18, 1890 :

" Dr. Doe carried in his large frame a spirit that was singularly open and guileless. His temperament was sensitive and sympathetic. His life was exceptionally pure, and his reputation was without a flaw. The temptations of early manhood never touched him to do him harm. His ideal was high. He had no time or taste for conventional society, but he loved his friends loyally. He admired music and found in this his chief recreation. He was of a generous nature ; and recalling the help which a kind word or act from his elders had afforded him in the beginning of his career, he took much pleasure in extending similar recognition and aid to young men just starting in life.

" In his professional work Dr. Doe was successful and prosperous. He was not a ready writer, or an easy speaker, and he therefore was not widely known through contributions to medical transactions. It was at the bedside and at the houses of his patients that his medical skill and judgment found their most congenial exercise, and here he was conspicuously successful. He was untiring in his fidelity, gentle and sympathetic in manner, skilful in treatment. He inspired confidence by his presence and bearing. He was a typical illustration of the good family physician, and his death is mourned in many domestic circles, where his loss seems almost irreparable."

This tribute to Dr. Doe's memory is abundantly supported and confirmed by testimony from other sources, and the Class of Sixty-five may well feel proud to have had among its members one whose life was so useful and honorable, and whose death is so sincerely and deeply lamented.

W. H. F.

*WALTER HENRY DORR. He died at South Boston, 17 June, 1880. See Secretary's Report, No. 6.

WILLIAM BULLARD DURANT. He has continued the practice of law in Boston, residing in Cambridge.

He belongs to about fifteen clubs, including, in addition to those previously reported, the Essex County Club, the Harvard Musical Association, the National Horse Show Association, and the National Hunt Association. He is still a justice of the peace. He served for two years as treasurer of the St. Botolph Club, and is now a member of the election committees of the Union Club and the Somerset Club. He has this year served on a committee of the Citizens' Association to prepare a revision of the city charter for Boston. He sailed for Europe, 3 May, 1890, and returned at the end of October, 1890.

Address : 10 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

WILLIAM JASON GOLD. He writes in reply to the Secretary's "somewhat formidable list of questions" as follows :

"My life since the last Report has been uneventful. For the last ten years I have been employed in the discharge of my duties as Professor of New Testament Exegesis and Liturgics in the Western Theological Seminary. I have also had, during the whole of that time, the office of subdean, involving the charge of the intellectual curriculum and general discipline of the school.

"I have been for the same length of time examining chaplain to the Bishop of Chicago.

"I was elected, in 1892, for the third time a deputy to the General Convention of the Episcopal Church, a body which meets triennially.

"I have written and published nothing of a permanent character. I have, however, been for the last seven years chief editor of The Living Church, the principal organ of the Episcopal Church in this part of the world, a position which, while it sufficiently exercises the pen and brain, does not bring fame. I have also contributed an occasional article to a magazine entitled The Church Eclectic, now published in Milwaukee, but nothing of sufficient importance to be worth recording.

"I belong to the Harvard Club and the Church Club, both of Chicago, have taken no additional degrees, made no journeys to foreign countries, and, in fact, none except an occasional trip away from this centre to the outlying cities of the Atlantic seaboard, such as New York, Philadelphia, etc."

THOMAS EDMOND SYMMES. He sends the following report of his life since the last Report:

"My occupation during the past five years has been of a character similar to that stated in the last Class Report.

"My fifth child, Anna Harrison, was born 28 October, 1893, coincident with my fiftieth birthday; I think of her as my semi-centennial birthday present.

"Among the articles written for The New England Home, a paper that was published at Hartford, Conn., I will mention three, the titles of which and the dates of publication are as follows: 'Vain Appeals and Costly Experiences,' March 10, 1894; 'Industrial Guilds,' March 24, 1894; 'Our Stewardship,' April 21, 1894. I sent other articles to this paper and the Worcester Times, in which the suffrage question was considered, but they were refused publication, because, as I suppose, they contained matter too strong for the woman suffrage stomach. My poem, entitled 'The World's Progress; or, the Church and the Home of the Blest,' has reached three thousand lines, but is not yet published. I have three machines in progress of construction which I intend to have patented. So you see I am still aspiring, still designing to shoulder upon an unwilling world such principles as I deem will result in its betterment."

GENERAL SUMMARY.

Our Class, while in college, numbered 129. Of these, 75 were graduated in 1865, and 11 afterwards received degrees of A. B., as of that year, making 86, whose names appear in the quinquennial catalogue as alumni of 1865. Of this number, 2 have died since the last Report, and 22 since graduation, leaving 64 graduated members now living. 49 of these are married, 10 unmarried, and 5 are widowers. 13 have lost their wives by death, of whom 8 have married again. 149 children have been born, of whom 130 are now living.

Of the 43 temporary members, 32 are now living. 24 of these are married, 8 unmarried. 4 have married a second time. 51 children have been born, of whom 39 are now living.

CLASS MEETINGS.

The following meetings of the Class have been held since the last Report:

NEW CLASS FUND.

When it appeared, in 1890, that the expenses of our Class Dinner and Class Report of that year would require the use of all of the small balance remaining of the Class Fund, the Class Committee recommended that a NEW CLASS FUND of at least $4000 be provided to defray future Class expenses, that the condition of the Class finances be reported to the Class, and that all graduated members, and those temporary members who had attended our Class Reunions, be invited to join in making up the required sum. In September of that year the Secretary issued a circular in accordance with these instructions, inviting subscriptions payable in four equal semi-annual installments in the years 1891 and 1892. Subscriptions from the following-named persons have been received in answer to this circular:

Bancroft, Boardman, *Carter, Clifford, Curtis, *Doe, G. A. Goddard, Greene, Hosmer, Mifflin, Potts, Rogers, Rotch, Souther, Tweed, Clark, Cushing, Sturgis, $100 each; Alison, Brownell, Dabney, Durant, W. A. French, D. S. Greenough, Snow, Tucker, Gorham, Jewett, $50 each; Buzell, Hooper, Hoyt, Pasco, E. T. Williams, $25 each; J. Greenough, Hunnewell, Poor, Wilder, $200 each; Churchill, Cook, Hollister, $20 each; Putnam, $80; Symmes, $8; H. B. Williams, $500; A. R. Leeds, $10. Total, $4008. Of this aggregate, $100 was not collected on account of the death of the subscriber. Of the balance, $3758.00 has been paid in, leaving $150.00 still over-due and unpaid.
